

HANDS-ON 5

Task	Hint
Copy apps/leuven/training/HPC_biomech/C_C++ to $VSC_HOME directory and go C_C++ Compile hello.c to hello - use intel/2021a toolchain and icc compiler Run the hello program	<pre>cp -r /apps/leuven/training/HPC_biomech/C_C++ $VSC_HOME; cd C_C++</pre> <pre>module load intel/2021a; icc hello.c -o hello</pre> <pre>./hello</pre>
Download links-2.20.2.tar.gz file from http://links.twibright.com/download/links-2.20.2.tar.gz to your scratch directory Unpack the file Go to links-2.20.2 directory Configure the package to be installed in $VSC_SCRATCH Install it Go to bin directory in $VSC_SCRATCH Try to open www.google.com in links Go to your home directory Try to add the path where links is located ($VSC_SCRATCH/bin) into env. $PATH Check if system recognizes links command Open www.google.com in links again Close the terminal and try if links is recognized by the system in a new terminal Copy the original .bashrc into your $VSC_HOME directory as .bashrc-orig Edit your .bashrc file and modify the $PATH the way that system knows where to find links. Open a new session and test if that works	<pre>cd $VSC_SCRATCH; wget links.twibright.com/download/links-2.20.2.tar.gz</pre> <pre>tar -xzf links-2.20.2.tar.gz</pre> <pre>cd links-2.20.2</pre> <pre>./configure --prefix=$VSC_SCRATCH</pre> <pre>make make install</pre> <pre>cd $VSC_SCRATCH/bin</pre> <pre>./links www.google.com</pre> <pre>cd</pre> <pre>export PATH=${PATH}:$VSC_SCRATCH/bin</pre> <pre>which links</pre> <pre>links www.google.com</pre> <pre>which links</pre> <pre>cp $VSC_HOME/.bashrc $VSC_HOME/.bashrc-orig</pre> <pre>in .bashrc: PATH=$PATH:$VSC_SCRATCH/bin:</pre>

Copy back the original .bashrc into your $VSC_HOME directory	cp $VSC_HOME/.bashrc-orig $VSC_HOME/.bashrc
Try to install additional Python package (the way is most convenient for your workflow)	See https://docs.vscentrum.be/compute/software/python_package_management.html